Why Is It

That company people come to the fall of the year so poorly prepared to endure the exposure of the winter months? It is because care has not been taken to prevent the accumulation in the body of the seeds of disease. Medical Science is more and more plainly showing that there is a seed time of many of the more common sicknesses and that there is no harvest also sure to follow, unless these seeds be destroyed, or unless by some sure preventive the

the condition for their lodgment and growth in the body be destroyed. During the summer months from the stagnant waters along the roadside, from ponds and ditches, from meadows and swamps, from sewers and cess pools these little seeds rise in vapor, are borne on the wings of the high ways of travel, enter houses seemingly most secure from them. Every breath carries them into the lungs and stomach. If they find a good place to grow, they will multiply as truly as the seeds the farmer plants in his fields or the gardener in his hot beds. They increase with wonderful rapidity, enter into the blood and after its conditions. Just as the seeds of the garden rank in the soil, so these seeds of disease exhaust the body and break down the vital organs. Thus many a man comes to the end of the summer with every condition favorable for a severe sickness. But sickness means expense, not only in money, but also in loss of time and defeated plans. Now, in nothing else more than in this is the old adage of greater value—"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." Keep always with you, during the summer months, a bottle of

THE CHIEF-JUSTICESHIP.

[Maine Farmer.]

The whole people of our State are concerned in its judiciary. Many differ as to who shall make its laws, but all must agree as to the qualities one must possess whose duty it is to administer the law. Maine has had many illustrious men who have served upon its bench. It guards with fidelity the reputation and honors the memory of Prentiss Mellen, Nathan Weston, Ezekiel Whitman, Ether Shepley, John S. Tenney, Albion K. Parris, Nicholas Emery, Samuel Wells, Joseph Howard, Richard D. Rice, Jonas Cutting, Woodbury Davis and Edward Kent. The Supreme Court of our State to-day has upon its bench worthy successors of its illustrious predecessors. The State has been singularly fortunate in its Chief Justices. Only six men have ever held this high position: Mellen, Weston, Whitman, Shepley, Tenney and the present incumbent, John Appleton, who has for twenty-one years occupied this high position. His term of office will shortly expire, and having passed beyond four score years he will as a matter of course, retire at the end of his term.

It is fortunate for the State that it has upon the bench a Judge who is peculiarly adapted for this post of honor, and more fortunate is it for the State that men of all parties, from every section, have, with a practical unanimity, signified their desire for his appointment. We take it for granted that Governor Robie will not hesitate, so general is the desire for him so to do, to appoint as the successor of Judge Appleton, Hon. John A. Peters.

Judge Peters possesses every qualification for this post of responsibility and honor. He is learned in the law; has a cultivated and scholarly mind; is in the prime of manhood; is the soul of honor and integrity, and with it all possesses the humanities of man. Genial, generous and just; no man who knows him but delights to meet him; he has a charm of person which captivates all who come in contact with him. He is always the friend of the young; free from all jealousies, strong in his convictions, he tempers justice with mercy. He believes in the people and is alive to all that pertains to their welfare. He is tender-hearted, generous to a fault, but just in every degree. His appointment is one eminently fit to be made, one demanded by the people—one which will add to the judicial lustre of the bench and honor the State.

SENATOR MILLER ON NEW YORK POLITICS.

[From an interview in the Chicago Tribune.]

A reporter saw Senator Miller and asked him what he thought were the prospects of the Republican party this year in New York. "They are encouraging," he answered, "and I think we have a good fighting chance of carrying the State. When the Republicans are united in New York they are in a majority, and the present indications lead me to believe that we shall have perfect harmony in the party. In New York City they have adopted a new plan, allowing all Republicans to participate in the primaries, simply requiring them to register in advance. Under this new system the primaries will be held and it seems satisfactory to all factions. The election this year will be quite important. Outside of the moral effect on next year's contest, all our State officers, with the exception of Governor and Lieutenant Governor, will be chosen. In addition we elect a Legislature, of which half of the Senate will hold over and have a voice in the selection of a Senator two years hence."

"Is there going to be much of a fight for nominations?"

"I think not. The present incumbents, who were elected in 1881, were mostly new men, and as it is customary to give two terms, the old ticket will probably be renominated. We carried the State in 1881, and I cannot see why it cannot be done again in 1883."

TILDEN AND HOADLY.

("Gath," in the Cincinnati Enquirer.)

It seems to me that two more eccentric men never met on such a great occasion than Tilden and Hoadly. Now, if Hoadly had lived in New York city and Tilden in Cincinnati, I have no doubt that their conditions would have been entirely the opposite. Then Tilden would have come to New York with a gripsack in the summer time and rung Hoadly's bell and come in meekly, as he use to haunt Mr. Van Buren to get some fundamental instruction.

These two men remind me of an anecdote that I may have told before. I asked Mr. Harvey when he edited the short-lived Democratic paper at Washington called the Patriot, how he was doing one morning, and said, "I read your paper every day."

"Well," said Harvey, "that reminds me of two old friends who were going past this corner last week, and theo passed two such chaps as you and I, one of whom said to the other: 'Do you see that little fellow going past? That's Copernicus Smith.'"

"Aha," said the other, 'then that is Copernicus Smith; let me see, what did he do?'"

"'Why,' said the first speaker, 'he wrote that great treatise on civic sections.'

"'Oh, did he?' said the other. 'Who is the man with him?'

"'He is the man who read it.'"

I think that Hoadly's argument in favor of Cronin must have been read by Tilden, and that these two are the members of a mystic society revolving by the two great ideas of the appreciator and the appreciated. Hoadly had such good private character and was so successful a lawyer, and had really the talent for affairs, that when he desired to be Governor it was not hard to consummate it; but Thurman and Pendleton were in a great stew to find this new fellow, who had only been a Republican a few years before, about to get the nomination on the eve of the Presidential year, at a time when, by the drift of events, the State was pretty sure to go Democratic. No person but a man who has nearly been a candidate for President can state what feeling are his who is to be supplanted for the Presidency in his own State that he has sown and raked for years.

Mr. Robert G. Blaine, brother of Hon. James G. Blaine, has been appointed contractor of the museum at the Agricultural Department.

Col. A. D. Robinson, of Maine, connected with the Department of Justice, who was recently stricken with apoplexy at White Springs, Va., is improving.

LETTER FROM CALIFORNIA.

A MAINE MAN'S IMPRESSIONS—THE BIG WHEAT FIELDS — BLAINE'S POPULARITY.

STOCKTON, Cal., July 10, 1883.

To the people of our State of Maine, a country where the rain falls neither upon the just or the unjust during nine months in the year would seem a desert. Yet this fact makes California what she is a wheat producing State. During the rainy season, from November to March, is the seed time. Ground is prepared and wheat sown at any time during that season. The weather, continuing dry after that, the wheat grows, ripens, and waits for the harvest without injury. The season of seed time and harvest are so long that a small number of men can manage an extensive ranch. The wheat standing so long in the ear, becomes so hard that it is not easily affected by moisture in transportation. On account of this, California wheat is especially valuable. Stockton is situated on a slough (pronounced here slew) at the head of steamboat navigation on the San Joaquin river, and in centre of the richest wheat producing district of California. Two flouring mills are situated here, capable of making eight hundred barrels per day. Barrels are not used but the flour is stored in sacks containing twenty-five, fifty and one hundred pounds each. The land in the San Joaquin valley consists of two kinds, black or adobe land and sandy soil. On the sandy soil, which to the eastern farmer would appear to be worth nothing but which raises excellent wheat, the grain ripens earlier. The adobe land is considered more valuable, being composed of rotten tule roots and rich in vegetable food. Dressing from the stable is rather a nuisance than a help to the rancher, because the land, when it refuses to produce a full crop is summer fallowed, after which it will produce bountifully in an average season. Harvesting is done on a grand scale, some of the ranchers cutting and stacking the grain to be threshed by a steam thresher, others cutting and threshing it at the same time with one machine. The harvesters are driven ahead of the horses and steered by a wheel working on the principle of the rudder of a boat. The wheat is headed and the heads in the complete machines are threshed and the wheat put in sacks as it comes from the sickle. The average rancher will this year market twelve thousand bushels of wheat, which means to him at least twelve thousand dollars.

A person remarked to me that nearly all Maine men were either lumbermen or teachers. Simpson and Gray, the two wealthiest and most extensive lumber merchants in this city are both Maine men; and, out of the six male teachers in the city schools the past year, four were from Maine and the parents of our other two came formerly from the Pine Tree State. In the county of San Joaquin the majority of pedagogues hail from the same place.

In my journey across the continent all Republicans with whom I became acquainted and all that I have met since I arrived are enthusiastic for Blaine for President. The Republican voters know no leader like him. Just now the Democracy of California have an elephant on their hands in the shape of their Railroad Commissioners Carpenter and Humphrey. They were selected to oppose the monopoly of the Central Pacific Railroad and regulate its freight and passenger tariff. The would-be reformers proceeded to make a reduction for the "dear people" but reduced the fares between stations where there are few tickets sold during the year. Some of the Democrats proceeded with Congressman Budd to curse at the trick. The Congressman, being a new man and unused to the eastern tricks of his illustrious party, evidently has a lesson to learn when he reaches Washington and will have to be put in leading strings at once. Meanwhile the C. P. R. R. looks on, smiles, and asks the very pertinent question: "What are you going to do about it?" Some of the red-hot Democratic papers that are figuring for a chance to pose before the public, hint that a Guiteau crank would be in order. When the blind lead the blind they both fall into the ditch together; and (pardon the addition) begin to accuse each other of short-sightedness. P.

CANDIDATE FORAKER CONFIDENT.

[From an interview in the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.]

"What is your opinion of the situation at present?"

"As the result of my observation and the information I have gathered, I can confidently assert that the Republicans are pleased with the position and correspondingly confident of success. They regard themselves square and right on the two great issues of the day—the tariff and the liquor questions—and certainly don't propose to be diverted from an aggressive discussion of these important points by the gabble about the impeachment of Andrew Johnson, whiskey trials, Presidential thievery and other stuff, which would have about as much bearing on the points at issue as the silly jangling of a lot of boys over last year's birds' nests. I think we are well prepared for a very decided victory."

"You do not think the campaign will be regularly opened before the 1st of September then?"

"Not regularly, in my opinion. Meantime we shall be busy attending county conventions, soldiers' reunions and other gatherings, to which we may be invited. Of course, as I said, this will necessarily lead to the campaign proper. And it may as well be distinctly understood that we don't propose to be backward in the slightest degree, whenever occasion offers." This last was said with a pleasant smile, in the beaming light of which the reporter vanished.

A Washington despatch says: It is decided on the highest authority that President Arthur's trip to the Yellowstone valley will cause any expense to the government. It is also specifically denied that telegraph lines will be erected which will cost thousands of dollars and that 180 horses are being provided for the party to be paid for with public funds. It is authoritatively said that the fact of the President's being a member of the party will not add a single dollar to the expense of the trip, and it is added that the amount of forage that will be saved during the absence of government horses from their usual stations will more than pay the entire cost of the trip. It is not to be a pleasure party gotten up for the benefit of the President, but an official exploration party and the President is to accompany it as an invited guest. The exploration would be made this year in any event, regardless of whether the President accompanied the party or not.

Judge Hoadly's failure to sound any key note in the Ohio campaign has been commented on by both friend and foe. He has talked all around the issues which will be prominent in the canvass, but has carefully avoided touching any of them. His first speech will be in Alabama.

Hon. S. S. Cox, of New York, says: "I am a candidate for the Speakership, with a good prospect of success. I am told I can have the New York delegation solid; and the Empire State is entitled to some consideration. Outside of the State I have as much personal backing as any other candidate. I have been in politics twenty-seven years, and think I am entitled to be promoted. If I see no prospect of promotion I shall drop out of the House at the end of the present term."

The shameless conduct of the present Legislature is almost without parallel, for it is now abundantly proven that the extra session, costly as it is, will not be worth one day's pay per head. On Monday the Senate, after wasting an evening session, finally agreed upon a period of adjournment, but the House, with Democratic inconsistency, refused to stop the raid on the public treasury by referring the adjournment resolution to a committee, and then impudently agreed to a resolution shouldering all blame on the Republicans. It is to be regretted that there is no law to indict these persons for obtaining money by false pretences.—Phila. North American.

Majority and minority reports of the Tewksbury investigating committee will be presented to the Legislature on Friday. The former will contain about ten columns and the latter seventeen. The majority report will speak in the most positive terms regarding the direct charges against the honor of the State. It will take up in detail the most serious of them and endeavor to show how they have been refuted and will characterize in strong language the nature of the attempt to make the Commonwealth seem savage and brutal, and possibly may be very direct in its language on the part the Governor has taken to promoting the investigation.

The shooting at Wimbledon, Tuesday, when five marksmen made forty-eight points each out of a possible fifty, strikingly represents the high degree to which accuracy of aim has been developed. It may be said that shooting of this character is of little practical value, and this objection is not without some force, though in modern warfare accuracy of aim at long range is becoming more and more important. But what remarkable witness it bears to the precision of modern weapons and to the perfectibility of the human mechanism which controls them.

The Mexicans are congratulating themselves on a reduction of postage which is to go into effect there, in September. It will be quite a reduction, too, as domestic letters which now cost twenty-five cents will then go for ten cents.

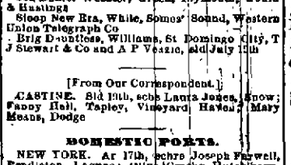
—THE—

New Hub Range FOR 1883.



COMBINES MORE IMPROVEMENTS, And Conveniences,

than all its competitors. The introduction of the New Hub in the city has caused our competitors to make over their goods, and in doing so their aim has been to get a stove "as good as the New Hub," but as yet they have all failed, and why?

The Patent Reflex Grate,

they cannot get a stove that will compare with the Hub. We have within three years and we refer to them for proof that the New Hub is the only range to manage the best baker, the most durable and the most economical range in the market. To prove the durability of the Reflex grate, we will simply say that we have taken the grates out of the Hubs that we have sold during the Summer season that New Hub has been mainly made over. Every point where experience has proved is the need of such, has been thoroughly strengthened, and we have to-day a range that is twenty-five per cent. ahead of any now in New England.

Compare it with any made in this city, or this State, and decide for yourself. We stand ready for every range that proves a satisfactory trial in your kitchen.

At Chicago.

The situation here, growing out of the rike of the telegraphers, showed no ma- rial change as the day wore on save that se working force in the Western Union fice became gradually enlarged, ninety- ven being busy at the keyes at 5 P. M. At hat hour the night force had not yet re- orted for duty and the officials had no ata to guide them in estimating the num- er that would remain loyal to the com- pany. None of the chief operators aban- doned their posts.

At Buffalo.

Nearly all the operators at the Western Union, Mutual Union and American Rapid Telegraph Company struck to-day and marched in a body out of the offices. "At 3 P. M. 26 men had been secured and com- munication with most of the principal cit- ies resumed. Manager Pillsbury is now receiving numerous applications from non-union men for places.

In Augusta.

In Augusta, Ga., fourteen Western Union operators struck to-day at noon. Five available men are at the keys. The branch office operators up town and at Planters Hotel have gone. All is quiet and orderly.

At Washington.

Nine of the day force of the Western Union main office worked through the day and it is understood that five of these promised to return to work to-morrow, when the day force went off duty. The wires were nearly clear, only about fifty messages remaining on file. At the Amer- ican Rapid office the manager and one operator remain on duty and six men have struck.

The Strike in Other Cities.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 19. The oper- ators of the American Rapid Line struck at noon. All operators of the W. U. Line re- main at work at one and business goes on as usual.

BALTIMORE, July 19. The operators in the main office of the W. U. Telegraph Company left in a body. Thirty odd left the main office of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, one, only, remaining, and from the Rapid line nine left, leaving a few female operators. The operators of the Western Union at Philadelphia, Cincin- nati and Chicago struck at noon. Few are left and along the line of the Baltimore & Ohio Road railroad matter is received, but all commercial business is refused.

In St. Louis 54 of the 75 operators of the day force on duty in the Western Union office left their instruments promptly at 12 o'clock, New York time. About one-half were women and girls. The force now in the office numbers 150 and business is moving with reasonable celerity.

In Oswego the telegraph operators went out at noon to-day.

In Detroit a majority of the operators in the Western Union office quietly left their desks. A small force remained which is disposing of the business in the best man- ner possible under the circumstances.

It Louisville, Ky., nearly all the opera- tors struck at noon to-day. Of over 30 operators in the Western Union office only 4 remained. Only five additional have been secured and more are expected to- morrow. The office was deserted.

Kansas City, Mo., thirty-one operators of the day force at 11 o'clock in the West- ern Union office quit work. Twenty re- mained of whom nine are women, six night men reported for duty and four extra men were obtained.

Despatch from Gen. Eckert.

CHICAGO, July 19. The following has been received here from New York by Col. R. C. Clowry, General Superintend- ent:

I am glad to hear such favorable ac- counts from you of the condition of busi- ness in your division. I will honor your draft for any amount you may think ne- cessary for the proper care and protection of all operators who remain and those who come to your relief. Arrange to board and lodge them in the best manner possible. We are comfortably off in the East. There are about 150 operators in our New York office with recruits coming in beyond my expectation. Other large offices are in very good shape and business is fairly up. For yourself and for the loyal men and women accept my thanks.

A plan of party organization was adopt- ed. The following resolution was also adopted:

AN IMMENSE BLAZE.

LOSS $600,000.

NEW YORK, July 19. At 10.30 this morning a spark from an engine fell into a pile of jute just landed on Harbeck's dock, Brooklyn, from the ship Lawrence E. De- lap, from Calcutta. The dock was filled with hemp, jute and coffee. The flames spread with incredible rapidity and in a few minutes the entire dock was ablaze. The Delap caught fire and had not pulling been burnt before she could be towed out. The ships Perseverance and Col. Adams, from Calcutta, caught fire and their crews jumped overboard.

The supports of the roof of the dock gave way and the roof fell in barring over a dozen firemen and deck hands, who were dragged out from the blazing rafters. None were killed outright, but were more more or less burnt and bruised. The chief of the battalion gave orders to clear the dock as the ship Lawrence Delap, which was now on fire, above and below, con- tained 4,500 bags of saltpetre. A rush was made by the crowd to the further end of the dock. While all this was going on a hoisting derrick, from which the sup- ports had been burned, fell over on the wharf with a crash, knocking two dock men overboard. Custom House Inspector Harradon was severely burned. Ships Perseverance and Col. Adams had by this time been towed into the stream and the fire tugs poured streams of water into them.

The steamer Alvena, of the Atlas Line, lay along Watson's dock, adjoining Har- beck's, when the fire broke out, but she was towed out in safety. The captain of the ship Lawrence Delap, with his wife and three children, are reported drowned. Two dock hands were also reported drowned, and one sailor was killed out- right by falling timber. Three men were seen to throw the trunk of Captain Grove, of ship Lawrence Delap, overboard con- taining $20,000 and $5,000 worth of jewel- ry belonging to his wife. It was picked up by river thieves, who rifled it and threw the empty trunk into the river. The wife and child of Capt. Grove were saved. Twelve firemen were badly injured.

Later.

This afternoon the vessels had burned nearly to the water's edge. The Lawrence Delap was towed over to Governor's Is- land and beached. The Perseverance was grounded in Buttermilk Channel and the Col. Adams was towed over to Jersey Flats. The cargo on the Lawrence Delap belongs to Collins Bros.; vessel belongs to English capitalists and were worth about $40,000 each, making $120,000 loss. On the cargo there will be about $300,000 loss; on the pier there will be about $50,- 000. Mr. Bartlett's loss will be about $50,000; loss on lighter $500; loss on mer- chandise on the pier $50,000; loss on the jute on lighter $25,000; total loss about $600,000.

The foundation has been completed, and the woodwork of the structure has been commenced. The lumber is all being sawed at a new mill erected there for that purpose.

TELEPHONIC CONSOLIDATION. The con- solidation of New England telephone com- panies is under advisement and it is said a plan will be placed before the stockholders of the various companies the latter part of this week or the first of next. The com- panies interested in the Union are all of New England and will number fully 12,000 subscribers and have an aggregate capital stock of between $10,000,000 and $20,000,- 000. The American Bell Company, it is said, will be interested in the new consoli- dation, but to what extent is not yet made public. In the event of a failure to adjust the basis of union for all the companies in- terested, it is learned on good authority the Bay State, Boston and Northern, National Bell of Maine and suburban companies will consolidate. The telephone companies un- der the Lowell management pay quarterly dividends amounting to $75,500, divided as follows: National Bell of Maine, 1½ per cent., $18,750; Boston & Northern, 3 per cent., $17,710; Suburban, 2½ per cent., $8,750; Union, 1½ per cent., $1,500; Bay State, 2½ per cent., $2,000; total, $75,500.

THE PEACH OUTLOOK. Reports from the peach growing sections continue to be most favorable, both as to the size and quality of the fruit and also as to the quan- tity of the crop, which is now estimated to be about 3,000,000 baskets. The handling of the crop is the chief source of anxiety now, for the fruit may be said to have gone over the dangerous period. Last season there was much irregularity in the train. The peach trains are made up during the day in the peninsula, leaving in the eve- ning, and should arrive in Boston early on the second morning, the time of running being 38 hours. The first train is expected to run about the end of the first week in August, and the trains will then be run regularly for about six weeks, depending largely upon the weather. During last season the trains averaged from 20 to 40 cars and the largest train consisted of 61 cars. Dealers have received assurances from the railroads that the peach trains shall be despatched with promptness and put through in good shape. Boston is the distributing point in this peach trade for all New England as it is in all other fruit, and the trade is only limited to the capacity of the facilities of handling.

Excursions.

The Kezar Street Social yesterday went down river on the steamer Queen City. The day was very auspicious and a large party joined in the trip. Landings were made at Ryder's Cove and Fletcher's Cove, Long Island. There was no log down the bay and the excursion was enjoyed by all participating. The party arrived home about 8 o'clock.

The annual excursion of St. John's Catholic Sunday School to Lake Maranacook will take place next Wednesday. Cliford and steamer Ralph Ross. The party stopped at Ryder's Cove, Islesboro, and arrived home on return at a late hour in the evening.

Those who are accustomed to look for- ward to the annual summer excursion of the Handel Society with great eagerness will not be disappointed at the brief an- nouncement in our advertising columns this morning. The managers, as usual, of- fer a strong attraction and the prospect of such a fine sail downward on the Katahdin is certainly no common inducement. The even promises to be a most auspicious one as usual.

MOONLIGHT EXCURSION.

A Delightful Trip.

At a few minutes past four o'clock yes- terday afternoon the steamer Howell left her wharf having on board a very pleas- ant party of ladies and gentlemen bound on an excursion to Fort Knox. The trip was planned several days ago, and has been postponed from time to time on ac- count of the unpropitious state of the weather, but yesterday, as if to recom- pense the party for previous disappoint- ments, the weather was simply delightful. The sail down the old Penobscot with its wealth of charming scenery was thorough- ly enjoyed and the steamer drew up in front of the frowning guns of the fort only too soon for those on board to whom the hours had seemed almost as minutes.

On attempting to land the party were somewhat amused at the peremptory order to return to the boat, issued by a mite of a lad, a son of the officer in charge, and in a moment after a sonorous voice came roll- ing down from the walls above, "Take that boat away," and on glancing up there was Sergeant Duffy on the wall of the fort, looking every inch a veteran as he stood on the outer edge of the immense granite structure in the time honored uniform of blue. He was quickly informed that the required permit to land was in the posses- sion of one of the gentlemen and then he showed the party every courtesy in his power.

After refreshments had been served in regular picnic style on the high bluff the party availed itself of the invitation of Sergeant Duffy to inspect the interior of the fort and under his guidance traversed what seemed like miles of subterranean passages, a portion of the distance being in complete darkness. It was a novel experi- ence and one that amply repaid the party for any nervousness caused by a thought that would intrude itself at some of the darkest points "that this would be a dis- mal place to pass the night if one chanced to get lost in any of the numerous pas- sages." Finally a winding staircase was reached and then followed a journey to the top of the fort, where the view was mag- nificent.

Later in the evening the boat moved a short distance on the water and fireworks were set off at different heights on the walls of the fort, making a handsome display to which Bucksport responded with fire- works on that side. Then came the grand sail home by moonlight, a fitting close to a most delightful occasion. The harpers rendered superb music during the entire trip, which ended at about midnight.

The excursion was under the direction of Mr. Harry Merrill, who kindly took charge of all the arrangements, which were ad- mirably carried out.

THE FIRE ALARM TELEGRAPH.

Its Introduction in Bangor—Now Ready to be Accepted by the City Au- thorities.

Mr. Edwin Rogers, of the Gamewell Fire Alarm Telegraph Company, has completed the work of introducing the system in Ban- gor. A test was made by him yesterday afternoon and he will probably be ready to-day for the committee of the City Gov- ernment to inspect the alarm and accept the same.

About six miles of wire have been stretched and eight boxes have been put in, three of them by private individuals. An indicator has been put in at the steam- ers' house and strikers have been attached to the bells of the First Congregational Church on the East Side and the Hammond Street Congregational Church on the West Side. The weights attached to the strikers were about five hundred pounds to the former bell and seven hundred pounds to the latter. At the steamers' house is sta- tioned a battery of twenty-five cups.

The location and number of the boxes is as follows:

No. 17—Hinckley & Egery Iron Works.
No. 23—Sweat's West Side Drug Store.
No. 25—Dole & Foggs's Mill.
No. 26—Maine Central Depot.
No. 34—Corner Union and Hammond Streets.
No. 51—Corner State and Park Streets.
No. 53—Corner Somerset and State Street.
No. 72—On State Street, opposite Maple.

The boxes in every instance are located on the exterior of the buildings. That at Hinckley & Egery's is situated on the office fronting on Oak street. At Sweet's Drug Store the box is on the corner fac- ing West Market Square. At Dole & Fogg's the box is on the office directly across the street from the mill. At the Maine Central depot the box is on the out- side of the baggage room. The box at the corner of Union and Hammond Streets is situated on the front of Dean & Pierce's store. The box at the corner of Park and State streets is on the State street side of A. M. Robinson Jr's drug store. At the corner of Centre and Somerset streets the box is fastened to a telephone pole. The box on State street, opposite Maple, is situated on the front of the Elijah Low house.

In the vicinity of each box there will be two keys in the charge of responsible par- ties. The police officers will be supplied with keys and also the Engineers of the fire department. Each key is numbered and when it is placed in the keyhole and the box opened to sound the alarm the key cannot be removed without the use of a special release key in the charge of the fire department engineer. This precau- tionary measure enables the location of the responsibility in case of a false alarm. The first figure of each box number indicates the ward in which it is located and in striking the numbers of the boxes the bells strike the first figure and after a brief in- termission the second. For instance, No. 17 is at Hinckley & Egery Iron Works. The first figure indicates it to be in Ward One and an alarm from there would cause the bells to strike once and then after a brief rest seven strokes would follow. The Maine Central box is No. 26. The first number shows it to be situated in Ward Two and an alarm from there would cause the bells to strike two, stop a brief mo- ment and then strike six.

THE BEAUTIFUL GREEN MELON.

A beautiful thing it was, and right green was young Mr. Green, who went down to the cellar about midnight and ate nearly half of it. The next day young Mr. Green said he didn't want any breakfast, and he thought he would not go to the store. He wished he hadn't seen that watermelon. THE SCENT OF A DEAD ROSE.

"I shall say no more; you may take your own way, all of you. I shall never interfere with you again, for good or bad, so good bye to you!" and Aunt Paulett bobbed off on her ebony crutch like the offended old fairy godmother.

The family looked at one another with blank faces as the door clapped smartly after her.

Aunt Paulett was a woman of her word, and if she said she would go back to her husband's people, go she would undoubtedly, and then, what would become of them all?

From that day—twenty years ago—when she, a childless widow, entered her sister's scrambling, out-at-the-elbows household, to yesterday evening, she had ruled them all with a rod of iron, by the might of a strong will and a long purse.

Easy-going Mr. Hilton and his fair, stupid, good-natured wife, who spent a placid existence doing wool-work on the sofa, her ideas seemingly bounded by the requirements of the last annual baby, were mere ciphers in their own house, under her stern, yet wholesome sway.

If Mr. Hilton, after one or two cutting remarks from her ladyship, had sadly resigned his ancient and comfortable fashion of spending the evenings in his greasy old dressing-gown and down-at-heel slippers—if the servants shook in their shoes at the sound of Aunt Paulett's bell, and a hint of "Aunt Arabella" quelled the wildest nursery riot—yet she handsome premium which was to start clever Jack on the road to glory as an engineer, the allowance which sent studious Pierce to college and saved him from filling a stool in his father's office, Dora's pretty gowns and trinkets, Emily's singing lessons and the new piano, the summer trip to the seaside the winter pantomime and Christmas party—in brief, all the comforts and luxuries of the family from the pony carriage to the last baby's christening robe, came from the generous hand of the same beneficent old despot; and now, now all were melting away before their astonished eyes like summer snow, and Aunt Arabella was off to spend the rest of her days with the George Paulletts—and why? Because, forsooth, pretty Dora, instead of carrying out her aunt's intentions and waiting till, in the fulness of time, Spencer Paulett should return from sea, fall in love with and marry her, had gone and engaged herself to the parish doctor's long-legged Irish assistant, with nothing in the world to offer her but a warm Irish heart, a decent share of brains under his shock head of red hair, and an income which he modestly described as being mostly on the wrong side of his account bookias yet.

There was an appalled silence, broken only by the sound of the old lady's crutch tapping off into the distance.

Mr. Hilton retired behind his newspaper with the air of a man who had much to say on the subject presently.

Mrs. Hilton smiled feebly on the sofa. The smallest Hilton but one sat under the table sucking its thumb, and, vaguely conscious of evil to come, prepared for a wail. In a distant window Dora wept and wept, impervious to all Cornelius' vigorous whispers of consolation.

Pierce had withdrawn discreetly when the storm broke, through the window, into the garden, where he was seen walking up and down in undismayed meditation; and Jack surreptitiously shaking his fist at the unconscious back of his would be brother-in-law, followed Pierce. Meanwhile, up the staircase and down the corridor went Aunt Arabella briskly enough, despite her lameness and her eighty years. She had two little rooms in a remote corner of the house, sacred from the intrusion of the most audacious of Hiltons. She entered the first of them, where a pale, meek female sat sewing.

"Parker!"

"Yes, my lady."

"I want my trunks. Find them at once and pack up everything that belongs to me."

Long attendance on her imperious mistress had deprived the gentle Parker of the power of expressing any sentiment but that of acquiescence.

"Yes, my lady."

"We go on the first train to-morrow, so be ready."

"Yes, my lady."

"And let some one take two letters to the post for me to-night."

"Yes, my lady."

Lady Paulett passed on to the next room, a bed-room furnished with a magnificent erection of mahogany and satin damask large enough to accommodate ten little old ladies like herself.

There was a wood fire burning, rendering dimly visible ancient spider-legged tables, a corner cupboard with treasures of old china and enamel; elaborate works of art in patchwork; a counterpane, cushions, etc., and some framed and glazed performances in cut-stitch, "Eliezer meeting Rebeca," "The Prodigal's Return," and "Ruth Gleaning," with faces and hands of painted kid, faded by age into ghastly whiteness.

Lady Paulett seated herself in a tall, old arm chair by the fire, while Parker lighted a large silver-branched candlestick and drew a table near to her.

"My writing-desk, Parker, and you may come for the letters in half an hour."

"Yes, my lady," and while Parker burned off to rummage out her mistress' long-forgotten traveling equipments, Lady Paulett in her neat, old-fashioned hand, indited two short notes, addressed the one to "Mrs. George Paulett, Eastholm Hall, Wilmington, Yorkshire;" and the other to "R. J. Blackett, Esq., Lincoln's Inn, London." She had finished before Parker reappeared, and after sitting thinking for a few minutes, drew from her desk a folded paper. It was headed, "Memoranda for my Will, 1869," and contained sundry notes over which she pondered.

"These are the letters, Parker. Let them go at once—but first bring me my dressing-case and jewel-case. They shall have what I have bequeathed to them now, before I go. I'll make no difference, and then I'm done with them all forever—ungrateful set!"

Parker placed a gorgeous inlaid dressing case and massive brass-bound coffer before her mistress and departed. Lady Paulett drew the latter to her with some difficulty. It is time an old woman like me should be rid of some of these burdens," she said, smiling grimly, as she turned the key and disclosed case upon case of morocco and velvet snugly stowed away. She turned them out and laid them all open before her—a brave show in the bright fire and candle light.

Parker meanwhile stepped noiselessly to and fro in the background, emptying the big wardrobe of its contents and bearing them away to pack in the next room.

"Let me see. Dora? She's the eldest. She was to have my emeralds. She'll take it as a delicate compliment to the man of her choice. Bah! He'll pawn them; what else can one expect? Well, well, it doesn't matter. I always hated them, though they are the handsomest set I possess. How well I remember Sir Josiah bringing them home the day before I was presented at Court, and I had thought he meant to give me pearls, and had ordered a pale amber dress. I cried about it, but I dared not ask him to change them, or refuse to wear them, and I felt so disgusted! I knew they looked detestable, and I heard one old lady whisper to another, 'Eggs and spinach,' and the other said something about 'City,' and they both tittered. One feels those things when one is young. Well, I hope Mrs. O'Shane may be happier wearing them. O'Shane! pah! I dare-say, though, she'll be as proud of the name as I was at that time of being Lady Paulett—ah me!"

"What next? Emily—my diamond brooch. Yes, here it is." It was one of those quaint, old fashioned ones in a silver setting—a large spray of flowers and leaves. "Pretty, little, gentle thing, it's too grand for her now, but she'll be a fine young woman one of these days. They say she's something like I was but without my high spirits. Dear! dear! what a gay young thing I was at her age, and what flutterings I expected were to happen in me in my life!—and what a dreary time I have had of it. I must keep an eye on little Emily—wherever I am, they are all too apt to overlook her. Yes, she shall have the diamonds. Mr. Paulett gave them to me on my wedding day, and I wore them at the grand ball his company gave when the Duke came into the city to be made a cheesemonger.

"I can see myself now in my white Canton crape the French fringes and the myrtle sprig embroidery and the Prince of Wales plume in my hair. Josiah said I looked quite elegant, only very young. (He was sensitive about the difference in our ages, poor man.) I remember hearing Lord Sidney Murray, the Duke's aid-de-camp, ask 'who the pretty little bride was,' and a minute after he came up and was presented. He led me out, right to the head of the room, into the very set with the Duke and Lady Mayoress, and I thought Josiah would be so pleased. I could see him fidgeting about the whole time, trying to catch sight of us between the people, and shaking his head and making signs to me, till I almost forgot the figures—and my dancing used to be greatly admired in those days." Lady Paulett smiled to herself at the thought, arched her neck, and made a little movement with her wrinkled old fingers as if gracefully bestowing the tips on some imaginary partner.

"It was vexatious, and Lord Henry was so kind and so droll. But Mr. Paulett gave me such a frown as he led me out into the tea-room that I hardly knew what he said or how to answer him. Poor, dear Josiah! To think that after all he was only afraid that I was laughing too much, and Lord Henry might think me a silly school-girl, or that some of the city ladies might fancy we were quizzing them. I dried all the way home, and that was the end of my first appearance in society."

(To be concluded.)

IS THERE ANY PROFIT IN FARMING?

We think there is profit in farming, in Penobscot county. We admit there are more profits to be derived from the production of some crops than from others, but we think all of the crops raised in this county can be produced at a profit, if we put the land in a proper condition to produce a paying crop; but where we take a poor piece of land and put any kind of a crop, what are we to expect? Only a poor crop that does not pay expenses, and how frequently we hear the remark made, our crop will be light unless we have a very favorable season for it. We believe, and we think the facts will bear us out in the assertion, that where the farmer will put his land in the condition that is required, it will produce a paying crop every year, though many, I presume, will have a different opinion. We think that the hay crop pays the best of any, but we think corn, potatoes, wheat, oats, barley, and even buckwheat, are raised at a profit in this county. By some in favored localities, garden truck will give larger returns than any other crop that can be raised.

Mr. Ephraim Pickard, of West Hampden, raised the present season, on one-fourth acre of land, sixty-five bushels of peas, that he sold in Bangor for $35. The cost of producing crop,—hoeing, harrowing, dressing, planting, hoeing, picking and marketing, $25, giving a net profit of $60 on the crop of peas.

About the middle of June, he planted beans between each row of peas, which are looking finely and give promise of a large crop. Who can beat this? If any, we should like to hear from them. —S.

WHAT MRS. BRUCE

Of 35 Grant St., Springfield, Mass., says about Her Husband's Sickness, and what Finally proved a Real Boon to Him—Words of an Affectionate, Good Woman.

Mrs. Bruce says. "My husband is an employee in the United States Armory in Springfield. He has for years been a terrible sufferer from bilious sick headaches. He has fearful attacks of this kind. Sometimes they will come on him every week or so. He has never found any medicine which would give him any permanent relief or prove any preventive against these severe attacks until he began to use Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY. He has received the greatest benefit from its use. The testimony of Mrs. Bruce is like that of hundreds of others, who say: 'I procured a bottle of Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY, and used it with the best of results. I have no more headache or pain in the side. Indeed, she in didle seems to have any pain in any way effected, and I feel very grateful for FAVORITE REMEDY.' Dr. Kennedy is glad to recommend his medicine to all who are suffering from sick headaches resulting from any of the above causes, as it has a free, positive otherwise.

To Keep the Blood Pure

HALL'S
Vegetable Sicilian

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to excite the vigor of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause. The entire fulfilment of its promises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever and dryness, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

SALT RHEUM.

Wonderful Cures of Salt Rheum when Physicians, Hospitals and all other Means Failed.

SALT RHEUM.

I have been a great sufferer with Salt Rheum for thirty years, commencing in my head and arms and extend ng over the greater part of my body. I have taken gallons of medicines for the blood of different kinds and tried good physicians, all of which did me no good, and I came to the conclusion that I could not be cured. But a friend called my attention to CUTICURA REMEDIES. Got them and used them until my skin is perfectly smooth and I consider myself entirely cured. Yours truly,
AGAWAM, Mass. E. WILSON LORD.

SALT RHEUM.

CUTICURA REMEDIES are the greatest medicines on earth. And the worst case Salt Rheum in this country. My mother had it twenty years, and in fact died from it. I believe CUTICURA would have saved her life. My arms, breast and head were covered for three years, which nothing relieved or cured until I used the CUTICURA RESOLVENT (blood purifier) internally, and CUTICURA SOAP (the great skin cure) externally.
NEWARK, Ohio. J. W. ADAMS.

SALT RHEUM.

I had tried every thing I had heard of in the East and West for Salt Rheum. My case was considered a very bad one. My face, head and some parts of my body were almost raw. I had covered with scabs as a sore. Suffering fearful. No very skilful physician said he would rather not treat it, and some of them think now I am only cured temporarily. That is not so, for I have not a particle of Salt Rheum about me, and my case is considered wonderful. Thank to CUTICURA REMEDIES.
DECATUR, Ind. MRS. S. E. WHIPPLE.

SALT RHEUM.

No system of remedies ever compounded so thoroughly eradicate the diseases for which they are intended as the CUTICURA REMEDIES. Many remarkable cures have come to my knowledge, and I feel safe in warranting satisfaction if directions are followed. Medicines that so faithfully cure Salt Rheum as CUTICURA REMEDIES do, will cure any kind of skin disease.
